GUEST FACULTY

Yujin Hoshida, MD

Dr. Hoshida is Director of Liver Tumor Translational Research Program in Simmons Comprehensive Cancer Center, Associate Professor of Internal Medicine in Division of Digestive and Liver Diseases at University of Texas Southwestern Medical Center. He has been leading several international translational liver cirrhosis/cancer genomics projects, utilizing high-throughput omics technologies and integrative clinical and cross-species systems biology analysis. The current focuses of his team include liver cancer riskpredictive molecular biomarkers, individual risk-stratified personalized cancer screening based on cost-effectiveness, chemoprevention target discovery, radiogenomics, and molecular subtype-guided liver cancer therapies by utilizing patient-derived tissues/cells, liquid biopsy of circulating biomolecules, single-cell omics, molecular digital spatial tissue profiling, clinical diagnostic platforms, nanomedicine technologies, and high-power computation.

Robert J. Lewandowski, FSIR

Robert J. Lewandowski, MD, FSIR, is a professor in radiology, surgery, and medicine and director of Interventional Oncology at the Northwestern University Robert H. Lurie Comprehensive Cancer Center. Dr. Lewandowski joined the staff at Northwestern in 2006 upon completion of his fellowship training. Dr. Lewandowski is board-certified by the American Board of Radiology with a certificate of additional qualification in vascular and interventional radiology. His primary interest is using loco-regional therapies to treat primary and secondary hepatic malignancies; he is involved with both pre-clinical and clinical studies in the field of interventional oncology. He has authored or co-authored > 100 articles for peer-reviewed journals on topics such as chemoembolization and radioembolization to treat liver cancer.

Laura M. Kulik

Dr. Kulik is Professor of Medicine in the Division of Gastroenterology and Hepatology, and is Certified in both Gastroenterology and Hepatology and in Transplant Hepatology. Her major clinical research focus is on the therapy and diagnosis of hepatocellular carcinoma and works in a multi-disciplinary medical/radiologic/surgical Liver Tumor clinic, and she is involved in the recruitment of patients with HCC into clinical or pathologic trials. Her major interest is on loco-regional therapy for HCC, both as a primary therapy and as a bridge to liver transplantation, including 90Yttrium radiotherapy and TACE.

Robert G. Gish, MD

Robert G. Gish, MD, is currently an Adjunct Professor of Medicine at Stanford University in Palo Alto and also an Adjunct Professor of Medicine at the University of Nevada School of Medicine in Las Vegas and in Reno. He serves as an Adjunct Professor of Pharmacy at Skaggs School of Pharmacy and Pharmaceutical Sciences at UCSD. In addition, he is also Medical Director of the Hepatitis B Foundation in Doylestown, Pennsylvania. Dr Gish is a fellow of the American Association for the Study of Liver Disease.
